Specialist in-work support for disabled academics and professionals

Disability Work Coach Training

Introduction

Welcome to the UK's first qualification in Disability Work Coaching, that brings together disabled lived experience, academic research & practitioner specialisms, and pragmatic HR expertise to build the skills and knowledge you need to be the most effective Coach for disabled people navigating disabling barriers at work.

What makes this course so unique?

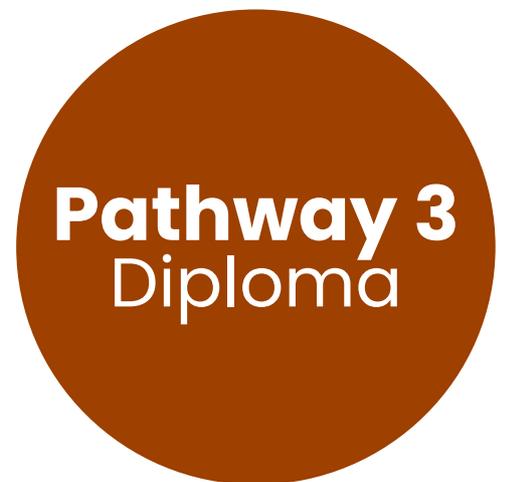

Unlike standard personal and professional coaching models, our approach explicitly addresses both individual and systemic barriers in the workplace for disabled people, recognising the intersectional nature of disablement and its impact on career development. This approach equips coaches to work with clients not only on personal strategies for growth and resilience, but also on navigating organisational structures, challenging ableism, and working sustainably and pragmatically in professional contexts.

Accessibility

“ Everyone deserves the chance to gain a recognised coaching qualification and to use their skills and lived experience to drive inclusion in the workplace. ”

This is why accessibility and flexibility are built-in to everything we do; flexible assessments, reasonable adjustments, and supportive supervision throughout.

It is also the reason why we have three pathways to accreditation so that you can progress at your own pace and only invest in what you need.

The course is delivered wholly online through TWIP's Moodle (virtual learning platform), and is taught in small groups, each cohort being a maximum of 16.
