

The Work Inclusion Project

Specialist in-work support for disabled academics and professionals

Disabled academics and professionals often find their career derailed by inaccessible workplaces and inflexible working practices; TWIP can help navigate and remove disabling barriers that hold disabled professionals back from reaching their potential.

We understand the day-to-day practicalities that need to be considered when making workplaces accessible; we don't just preach impractical goals, we work to build and maintain the kind of inclusive and supportive working environments that our staff and clients need, while operating a remote team of almost 50 staff across the whole of the UK.

TWIP specialises in supporting disabled professionals in senior, complex, and / or autonomous roles, where management-led adjustments and support are less relevant and less available. We have particular expertise in supporting academic, legal professionals, and those in leadership & management positions in business / social enterprise, & entrepreneurs.
